PAGE'TE
238 The Rishis' Sadhanas for realising the formless and
276 Invisible Brahman; the Sacrament of Spiritual worship....
315 The Rishis' perception of God as
328. ' Anandam ', Love itself.
368' I. The Rishis' conception of God's love to every man
405 individually; instinctive craving of the soul for communion with God.
427 The Rishis'
470 conception of the
479 Phenomena of Death and
XXI. immortality and
XXII. of after-life.
The perception of the operation of God's Moral Law in the universe by the Rishis and their apostolic successors.
The Rishis' perception of God as Parama Purusha or the Supreme Person ; anthropomorphic conception of God a human necessity.
The Rishis' conception of Bhakti or reverential love to God; its development in later epochs.
The Rishis' enjoyment of Bliss in Go<^....
Conclusion,

PART II—TEXTS OF THE TWELVE CLASSICAL UPANISHADS WITH EXPLANATORY NOTES.

CHAPTER PAGE
I. The Chandogya

Upanishad. ... 495
II. The Brihadaranyaka Upanishad. ... 545
III. The Aitareya Upanishad. 571

IV.
V.
VI.
VII.
VIII.
IX.
X.
XI.
XII.

TTr The Isopanishad. 572
The Kathopanishad. 576
The Kaushitaki Upanishad. 586-

602
607
608
618.
625
639 to
644

The Kenopanishad.
The Maundukyopanishad.
The Mundakopanishad.
The Prasnopanishad.
The Svetasvatara Upanishad.
The Taittireya Upanishad.